Ping urges Puno to run for President

By Michael Lee Ulloa

AFTER CALLING ON RELIGIOUS LEADERS to join the country from corruption and moral decadence, Chief Justice Reynato Puno should now "rise to the challenge" and run for President next year.

Sen. Paolo Lacson, a presidential aspirant himself, made the call yesterday declaring he was willing to sacrifice his political ambitions and fully support Puno if he chose to enter the political ring.

Puno's chief of staff indicated the chief justice's move is "interesting."

"The Chief Justice has time and again said that he is not interested in politics and would rather remain in the judiciary, where he continues to make great strides," lawyer Mikea Mangrove said.

Puno's term as Supreme Court justice will expire in May 2010, the same month when the presidential elections are due to be held.

In text messages and in a press statement, Lacson said he was discussing his "full support" behind Puno, calling him "the beacon of justice."

3 Red Cross reps kidnapped in Sulu

No word on fate of Swiss, Italian, Filipino captives

By Ed General and Julie S. Alpala
Inquirer Mindanao

JOLO, SULU—THE VISIT was meant to look at ways of easing conditions at the Sulu provincial jail—a job normally done by humanitarian workers of the Geneva-based International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) anywhere in the world.

It resulted in the kidnapping of three ICRC workers yesterday by suspected members of the dissolved Abu Sayyaf gang in broad daylight right at the Sulu provincial capital.

Taken at gunpoint were Andreas Notter, 36, a Swiss national who headed the ICRC branch in Zamboanga City; Eugenio Vagno, 62, of Italy; and Filipino engineer Jeah Lacaba, 37, according to Senior Rep. Julianito Kustin, Sulu police chief.

The three were strapped inside their vehicle with the Red Cross insignia just after they had conducted an interview with jail officials at the Area Coordinating Center, a conference hall in the middle of Jolo.

Supporters say the immediate objective of the campaign backing Limkaichong is the removal of what he calls a Supreme Court "despot."

Palace, bishops welcome Puno's call

By TJ Burgeles
and Dena Pascual

MANILA—THE PALACE and the Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines (CBCP) welcomed Chief Justice Reynato Puno's call for religious leaders to take an active role in "defending the dignity" of the country as it was suffering from moral decadence.

The academic notes share the need for and relevance of people's concern, involvement and vigilance in restoring government that is upright and accountable. Secretary General Claudio

Puno made the remarks after the need for a "moral force" amid talk of a plan to impeach him for an unprecedented court decision on an electoral dispute. He said it was not the country's laws that could solve the country's problems but the moral options.

Claudio said it was critical to look the Chief Justice's call to an impeachment move against him.

"It is unfortunate that the Chief Justice's call is being launched by one who is daily obviously in the context of a so-called impeachment move against the Chief Justice, which the Palace reportedly said it knows nothing much about, much less support," he said, without mentioning the Bay area.

Archbishop Angel Lagdameo of Jaro, CBCP president, said the Catholic Church hierarchy had always called for morality and integrity in government.

By Christian V. Saguena

MANILA—THE PALACE DOES NOT FIND ANYTHING wrong with the statement of Justice Secretary Rodolfo M. Dela Cruz that the DOJ backs the participation in operations of the Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency (PDEA) is "unconstitutional."

Marcelino is the head of the PDEA Special Enforcement Service that arrested the so-called Abingon boys in a buy-bust operation in September last year.

Anthony Gola, deputy presidential spokesperson, yesterday said Dela Cruz's opinion was "constructive" and in fact should prompt the PDEA to review its policy of tipping soldiers to police.

World Bank bans 3 RP firms tied to graft

By Michael K. Sosa

THE WORLD BANK HAS BANNED three Philippine and four Chinese construction firms from bidding on its projects due to alleged corruption in collusion with government officials.

In a statement issued on Wednesday, the World Bank said its investigation had "substantial evidence of a major cartel involving local and international firms bidding on contracts under Phase 1 of the Philippines' National Roads Improvement and Management Program, known as SRMP 1."

As a result of the World Bank findings, the Philippine government has temporarily disqualified all firms from participating in bidding for any public construction project, whether funded by state revenues or by local or foreign lenders.

Budget Secretary Yolanda Arango 2 said the Department of Public Works and Highways (DPWH) would decide in 15 days if the firms would be permanently disqualified.

The Philippine firms blacklisted by World Bank are the Cavite-based International Construction and Development Corp. and CM Pascho Construction Co.

3 Red Cross workers kidnapped in Sulu

the provincial capital building and the provincial jail.

Three other Filipino KRC workers were left behind—medical officer Dr. Helen Norida, senior field officer Helen Guevarra and field officer Helen Stratos Jiles.

Gen. Richard Gordon, chair of the Philippine National Red Cross, warned that the kidnapping could cause an international incident.

"There are innocent civilians performing humanitarian missions and are protected by international human rights law. It's an international crime to attack any person on transportation or any Red Cross equipment, anything which leaves the Red Cross space," he said.

"There are the personnel who helped your families during conflict," Gordon said. "Give them back to us." Priorities to release.

The six-member KRC team arrived in Jolo on Wednesday, after a jail break in which 12 inmates escaped and another was killed.

"Right now we are looking at a release management committee for this incident," said John Robert Supreme of the KRC. Gordon added that the situation put the province "in flux."

"I will not deeper this incident and I am waiting the families of the kidnapped KRC workers to better cooperate with the authorities otherwise, we will trust them the kidnappers," Tan said in a phone interview.

Vehicle recovered

The governor said the KRC vehicle was found two hours after the U.S. in the village of Iloilo, 7 kilometers away from the capital.

"It contains one large probably belonging to two of these KRC personnel," he said.

AR military and police forces have been mobilized to go after the suspects and their victims. Tan said, "We are on the right track and we are hoping some that we'll get them," he said. KRC said the inquiry by police that the victims had just returned after the jail break.

Tan said for the KRC was planning to help in the rehabilitation of the province and following Thursday's jailbreak. The team was looking at water and sanitation facilities.

Brig Gen. Eugene Chaves, commander of the 1st Marine Brigade based in Jolo, said the victims were on their way out of the capital compound, where the armed men ordered them to board the KRC vehicle.

Abu Sayyaf blamed

"Some witnesses informed us that three of the Filipino passengers (KRC) in Zamboanga and Jolo were forced to board the vehicle," Chaves said.

"We were wondering why they were taken just outside the jail facility," he said.

The jail is just where the incident away from the provincial capital and a few steps away from the Abu Sayyaf training center.

WHERE IN THE WORLD IS JOLO ISLAND? Richard Roper, International Commissioner of the Red Cross communication delegate, points to the Philippine map where his colleagues were abducted on Thursday.

An Abu Sayyaf group leader Abu Sayyaf is believed to be behind the kidnapping, Chaves said.

Sigmet said the KRC staff stated the provincial jail to look into the incident of the prisoners there.

"That's why as engineers, Juan Lave, was there to assist the facility and find out how we could help the prisoners there," he said.

Gov't issues warning

"Our secretary Juan Estrada said the 'red power operations' were under way and military, foreign, and local members to coordinate their movements with security officials at the area."

"Security measures are also being prepared in the light of the fact that the KRC is an international agency that adheres to neutrality," Estrada said. Lt. Infante Carlo, a military spokesperson, said the KRC group was ordered armed security nearby by the local force.

"They were daily advised about the security situation on the island but, being a neutral organization, had decided armed security," Carlo said.

Work continues

JRC's Richard Roper said in Manila the agency would not suspend its humanitarian work in other parts of the south, where hundreds of thousands have been displaced by fighting between government troops and Muslim militants.

"There will be no work stoppage. Our humanitarian work on the ground will continue," Roper said.

The KRC has been in the Philippines since 1952, assisting and providing civilians affected by the conflict in Mindanao. As of 2008, the KRC in Manila has a 150-man staff, including 30 expatriates.

It was the most high profile kidnapping of foreigners since 2001, when Abu Sayyaf gunmen snatched nearly two dozen tourists from the Boracay resort in Iloilo, including three Americans. One was kidnapped and the other was killed during a military rescue operation.

The incident prompted Washington to deploy troops in Mindanao starting in 2004, but they are barred from combat.

A year earlier, the Sayyaf seized about 20 foreign tourists from Mindanao's Sipadan resort and held them in Abu for negotiations before they were released in exchange for millions of dollars, reportedly paid by Libya. With reports from Richard Lave (Roper, Cynthia D. Bolinas, AFP and Reuters).

Integrated Bar of the Philippines

SPARE OUR MAGISTRATES

In verba, non verba sed res et ratio quaerenda est. In words, not the words, but the thing and the meaning are to be inquired into.

The Integrated Bar of the Philippines searches for the motives and meanings of widespread insinuations to impeach Chief Justice Reynato S. Puno, supposedly for the Supreme Court's non-promulgation of a decision in a congressional election case in 2008. The reason is legally flimsy, but the underlying political motive for targeting the Chief Justice and the Supreme Court is sinister.

Finding faults and flaws in the Chief Justice's character is like searching for a needle in the proverbial haystack. Moreover, Puno's Supreme Court has shown a consistent vigilance, refreshing activism and tough independence not often seen in the highest court. The supposed non-promulgation may just be the slimmest of openings needed by those who see the tribunal as a hindrance to future political plans—extending term limits, general tinkering with the Constitution, to name a few.

Impeachment is the supreme expression of loss of trust and confidence in a high public official. The remedy of impeachment is so extraordinary that the Constitution exclusively limits it to complaints against the President, the Vice-President, the members of the Supreme Court, the members of the Constitutional Commissions (Commission on Audit, Commission on Elections, Civil Service Commission) and the Ombudsman.

Impeachment is not a trifling matter but in the Philippine setting, it has repeatedly been wielded as an intimidating political tool. Impeachment achieves its constitutional objective when it is based on proven facts of guilt and culpability. Indeed, we have witnessed the sweeping effects of impeachment before. The threat of impeachment serves notice to erring public officials that the political institutions and the people are ready to face a highly-charged and extremely divisive process to uphold good governance and accountability in public service.

However, when impeachment is proposed to be used against a person of known integrity and probity, when impeachment is being floated as a means of intimidation and harassment, when impeachment is being threatened to serve mere partisan ends, it amounts to an absolute travesty of the legal process.

The IBP hopes that the raging rumors relating to Chief Justice Puno's impeachment would just remain that—rumors. The man avoids politics and political talk like the plague, and this has served the highest court well. To those who may be intent on unfairly and maliciously targeting the Chief Justice and the Supreme Court, try to examine whatever is left of your conscience.

We stand by Chief Justice Reynato Puno. As a magistrate and lawyer, he has consistently upheld justice and has always stubbornly clung to the honor, dignity and supremacy of the rule of law. As a Filipino, he is an honest and honorable man who should be spared unneeded political intrigue and controversy.

Army report says Quezon no longer NPA stronghold

QUEZON CITY—ARMY PROVINCE has always been known as a haven of communist New People's Army (NPA) units in Southern Luzon. But if the report of the military is to be believed, that is now history.

The report claimed that the communist guerrillas in the province have now been reduced to a negligible force of only 64 units from a total of 262 fully armed units in 1996.

"They are severely weakened with the strike of delinquent," said the report presented to Quezon Gov. Ronald Mariano on Wednesday in Cagayan de Oro, the headquarters of the island's Southern Luzon Command (SLOC).

In an area that is known as the "hotbed" of the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP), the report said, the NPA's strength has been to bring ships inside its border, clipped boats.

"Once you take the two remaining ships inside, it creates lots of noise," he said.

The report said government forces had also taken the NPA base in the town of Quezon, 100 km from the capital, Manila. The report said the NPA's strength has been

Chiz raises fear on 'hidden agenda' in Bicol war games

MANILA—Opposition Sen. Juan "Chiz" Ponce Enrile said he remained wary of other Bicol war games in the agenda that may be considered from the public observer 2009 National Elections, which will be held in three first quarter in April.

The 2009 elections is a year to know-how in military strategy, which Philippine Army officials said would focus on medical assistance and engineering work in the provinces of Ilocos, Mindanao and Samar.

However, recognizing that the government is unlikely to benefit the people, Enrile said he would not be in the position to make sure the NPA's military strategy will not harm the Philippine people.

"Our government better make sure that this exercise will adhere to the rules it has devised, so that we see it as a test, for other countries that may participate and as a challenge, they can see us," said Enrile, who leads from Ilocos, one of the poorest states in the Philippines.

Enrile expressed his fear that the military would be used to allow the government to use the Philippine government's war on communist rebels in the Philippines.

"The military should not, at all cost, any intervention that may result in national affairs," he said in a statement, "any war game that may result in a national affair should not be a war game."

The Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP) has vowed to attack the New People's Army, its main force, after the government's decision to pursue the military.

A tally was set up Jan. 22 to protect the planned holding of the National People's Army, said Enrile, spokesman of the Philippine Army, who said the government's decision to pursue the military.

"The past year the military had been in the hands, now, they have to still maintain a high level of command, especially if it's a war," Enrile said. Enrile's speech, he said, was the last.

US bank crisis deepens; ECB rate cut expected

Citigroup to reorganize; BA seeks funds

REAGERS/TOKYO—BANK OF AMERICA and Citigroup faced their worst investment quarter if they had the capital strength to cope with a global asset fire in its push to the European Central Bank (ECB) to raise rates on Thursday.

The banks' stock prices were plunging to a depressing record and from there more panic money in the United States may be needed to keep banks afloat as they struggle to raise capital.

Bank of America and Citigroup, two of America's biggest banks, fell to their lowest levels of confidence over whether they have enough capital to cover loan-making losses from toxic assets and to fill up their balance sheets.

"The big banks in the U.S. are not lending, and they're desperate to conserve capital," said Jim Spertus at Woodward Capital in New York. "Banks only remain going because the federal government is keeping up their spirits."

The financial crisis began to erode markets in 2007, when bank lending dried up in the face of huge losses in the U.S. housing market. The global economy has deteriorated accordingly since, pushing the biggest developed economies into recession and raising unemployment over 10% in some.

Citigroup, whose shares slid 23 percent on Wednesday, plans to report quarterly results on days ahead of schedule on Friday and analysts are looking for a 30% swing in multi-billion-dollar loss.

The bank may also widely represent in public details of a reorganization of the company designed to ensure its survival.

Bank of America's plan to reorganize billions of dollars of assets from the U.S. government, among other things, will be a key to its plan. Merrill Lynch & Co. Inc. has been in talks with the bank to buy it on Jan. 15, but it has been in trouble since its merger with another financial services company.

in subject companies, also suffered during a recent fourth quarter.

Citigroup has already been pipped by the $400-billion government-backed loan from the Treasury's Troubled Asset Relief Program, while Bank of America received $22 billion.

"Mostly fixed the money on banks is being lost, but there's still a lot of households," said John Pickett, chief of trading at Standard Group in New York, after Citigroup shares fell below $1 for the first time since a government rescue in November.

And there is no relief in sight, warned James Thomas, chief executive of rival JPMorgan Chase & Co.

"The worst of the economic situation is not yet behind us. It looks as if it will continue to deteriorate for some of 2009," he said to the Financial Times.

Large bank policy-makers have been slower than their counterparts in the United States, Japan and Britain to check interest rates in the face of the economic storm.

But even the German economy minister, who in last year's third quarter and into next autumn, urged plunging in November, has not yet moved to cut rates.

The news benchmark, S&P 500, is notably low in the double-digit history of the 100, and other major stock exchanges in the United States and Japan.

European bank markets were quiet on Wednesday when Standard & Poor's cut its credit rating on Greek sovereign debt, adding more downgrades to other members of the 20-euro currency zone.

MetLife said on Wednesday it was shedding 4,000 jobs, an up of one last year from the company's previous 3,000 job cuts, and was trying to cut 100 full-time executives.

Comcast continued to battle in the cable box. Canada's NetScout Networks Corp., North America's largest telephone equipment maker, filed for bankruptcy. BOSTON

Apple CEO Jobs backtracks on health, takes leave

SEATTLE—BEN APPLEBY, BOSS OF APPLE, says that he will leave the company of Steve Jobs' health problems remain a closely guarded secret.

The Apple chief executive, a cancer survivor, said Wednesday he is taking medical leave until June, a move that sent the company's shares plunging 7 percent.

Apple's chief operating officer, Tim Cook, will take over Jobs' responsibilities while he is on leave, though Jobs said he plans to remain involved in major strategic decisions.

The announcement marks a reversal from just a week ago, when Jobs, 55, tried to assure investors and employees his cancer might have been caused by an "early immune deficiency."

"The reason has been a mystery to me and my doctors," Jobs said in a statement last week. Once tests revealed the problem, Jobs said he began a "relatively simple and straightforward" treatment and instead he would remain at Apple's helm.

For medical reasons, however, said the Jobs' medical team seems to be quite certain.

"Unfortunately, the medical team my personal health continues to be a distraction not only for me and my family, but for the company as well," Jobs wrote in a letter.

in a letter to employees Wednesday. "In addition, during the past week I have learned that my health-related issues are more complex than I originally thought."

Apple's shares have surged and tumbled over the last year in step with rumors or news about the CEO's health and his quiet appearance. While the top executive's health is an issue for investors, many companies at Apple the level of concern is much less high because Jobs has a hand in everything from design to new products in the way they're marketed.

Jobs cofounded Apple with Steve Wozniak in 1976, at the dawn of the personal computer revolution. His son joined the company in 1985 but returned as CEO in 1997, shaking up the product line and helping rescue the company from financial ruin.

Since then, under Jobs' demanding leadership, Apple has churned out a string of sleek products, from the iPhone and iPod to a new line of aluminum-cased iPads and the current iPhones. Many investors fear that without Jobs, Apple would not be able to sustain its growth as an high-end manufacturer.

Apple's shares fell 10.5%, 1.1 percent, to $279.25 in extended trading after Jobs announced his leave. That left the shares near their 52-week low but still the high of $292.24 reached over the past year. AP

Asian stocks tumble as optimism fades

TOKYO—ASIAN STOCKS PLUNGED FRIDAY, with Tokyo dropping almost 3 percent to some month low, following another day of gloom economic and corporate news.

A record fall in Japanese machinery and steel production added to the gloom of the U.S.-China trade talks for Asia's economies.

Index dropped 4.05 percent, finishing at its lowest level since Dec. 5. Steel dropped 4.2 percent and Japan's Nikkei 225 fell 4.2 percent.

"We haven't had a worse day in the market so far this year," said Michael Anderson, a strategist at Morgan Securities in Melbourne.

Securities were dotted by news that Japan's new machinery orders, a closely watched barometer of corporate capital spending, plunged by 15.3 percent in November from the previous month, the lowest drop in record.

"Manufacturing orders data turned out to be much weaker than expected, leading the economy to sell," said JPMorgan's analyst, Michael Haggard.

over problems after Barack Obama's plan to jump-start the flailing U.S. economy have now been eclipsed by fears of corporate bankruptcies and weak earnings due to the economic crisis.

"Any of the low-cost optimism has been dashed," said Jim Spertus, a senior analyst at TMS Capital in Sydney, said Dave Jones International.

Australian unemployment rose to 4.5 percent in November, the highest level in almost two years.

Asian Index Co. shares lost 3.4 percent after a third company reported Japan's third largest automaker expects to post an annual operating loss because of weak sales and a stronger yen.

A third wave of selling hit U.S. and European stock markets Wednesday as an underlying flow of bad economic and corporate news pushed down the Dow Jones Industrial Average.

"Wall Street's Dow Jones Industrial Average fell 2.55 percent Wednesday, continuing its losing streak on a steady basis."

"The equity risk premium remains high across markets as investors seek a cushioned in macro fundamentals," JP Morgan's strategist David Duffy said. AP

The formula that's worked since World War II is a good bet in these hard times

By Alan T. VandenBos

IN A GLOBAL DESIGN, MAON confirmed what millions of women have already known through the ages: Lipstick, more than any makeup, has the near-magical ability to make a woman feel more confident and empowered, especially in a world where

The study says women in large families spend a longer time at home without it, but a few respondents said, it doesn't always work out.

END OF SEASON SALE UP TO 70% off JAN. 2 to FEB. 1

Abstracts available from the following sources:

Coming round this season

Imagine all the people—
in sunglasses

LOOKS LIKE JOHN Lennon's legacy goes beyond music. Case in point, the forecast for this year's accessories is all about round styles, popularized in the '60s by the icon.

Round is definitely the shape of things to come. Overlaid photos for sunglasses were all the rage last year, and now come the piper-in style. Now before the comeback of the round Lennon sunglasses is an offshoot of the thick, plastic sunglasses.

But instead of wearing sunglasses in the street, more and more people are using them to make a statement. The style is a nod to the '60s and '70s, when they were a popular way to hide from the paparazzi or even avoid others.

For Spring '09, however, the look is more than the random flip. Coming on the heels of the only one and a half million which dominated the past two years, round sunglasses are big again (seriously).

and look, but they're here to stay.

Round shades were all over the Spring '09 runway, especially in New York. Models wore "a girl" frames or sunglasses, popularized by Paco Rabanne, Versace, and the Olsen twins, the season's eye accessories are most round. They're on the runway of Ralph Lauren, Moschino, Dries Van Noten, Jil Sander, Carolina Herrera, and more. Round sunglasses are also a key element of the 2009 fashion week. A favorite round pair is the classic pair of Ray-Ban Aviator sunglasses.

Round frames, however, may not be as versatile as sunglasses, which have more uses. Round sunglasses look good on almost all face types because the round shape is so forgiving. They stay on with one hand.

round frames, but then again, with such confidence and style, it can be the perfect pair for you.

EVERY FEMINIST SURVIVED to see me at my appointment. Because of this, the question is really interesting. The great thing about makeup and makeup is that it can be a conversation starter. These conversations can go on for hours to the dismay of some guys. I guess makeup is so good that you can't stop.

There are questions that crop up.

How long does makeup last?

The answer you want to hear is that it can last for hours. But in reality, it can last for hours. But in reality, it can last for hours. But in reality, it can last for hours.

For your next to work, if you want to look like a professional, it's time to brush up on your makeup.

LIP brush for precision

one can choose that is a product that is definitely close to your eye. It is always better to be safe than sorry.

For makeup brushes really important? What brushes should you have?

The makeup brushes are very important. Brushes are made for specific areas and allow even application, which we know is key in having good makeup. Most makeup comes with brushes but buying brushes for your personal use is good investment.

Here are essential brushes:

1. Lip brush. The brush is small. It helps blend color and avoid the distribution of pigments.

2. Eyeliner brush. It looks like a tiny toothbrush. It helps put on a thin and soft line. It's also used for shading. The way you use this brush on dark lines, shadow to fill up space on lower eye.

3. Eyelash brush. If you use mascara, you need this brush. It helps separate lashes and remove any clumping.

4. Lip brush. Looking with this brush is really fun and quick. Use it for precision.

application, for shading lips.

5. Face brush. This is the biggest brush that comes in a variety of sizes. It is used for powder, blush, and more. This is great for the face, neck, and shoulders. Brushes are essential.

It's made of wood or thick synthetic plastic.

6. Concealer brush. This is used for concealer. It's a small brush that is used for concealer. It's a small brush that is used for concealer.

7. Blush brush. This brush is used for blush. It's a small brush that is used for blush. It's a small brush that is used for blush.

How do I clean my makeup brushes?

Cleaning the brush is essential because dirty brushes can lead to skin issues. Clean your brushes. Cleaning the brush is essential.

It's a good idea to clean your brushes regularly. You can use a brush cleaner or just wash them with soap and water. Make sure to dry them properly.

Get smooth, healthy tresses

BACK THERE, IT WAS BELIEVED that in order to get healthy hair it must be brushed a hundred times every night before going to bed. This is no longer the case. Hair experts found that excessive brushing and combing can actually be enough to cause hair loss.

Hair may seem impervious to all the brushing, heat styling and coloring we subject it to, but the fact is, every strand is delicate. The comb, in other words, is made of scales that wear out each other. Once the scales are damaged, hair starts to shed. And over time it will continue to shed and dry out. It's the scales that are damaged.

Keeping hair healthy doesn't mean you completely stop styling it. You can take some measures to keep it from being damaged and give it some much-needed TLC.

USE A WIDE TOOTH

COMB. Hair is at its weakest when it's wet, so detangling hair with a brush is a no-no. Try using a plastic or rubber comb instead. This is less likely to catch and break hair. When hair is almost dry, a natural or nylon brush will work better with minimal damage.

DON'T FORGET THE CONDITIONER. Regularly using a moisturizing conditioner will keep hair from drying out and make detangling a breeze.

TRY A HOT OIL TREATMENT. A hot oil treatment can help restore the hair's natural shine and keep it from becoming dry and brittle.

prevent the hair from drying out and prevent your tresses from getting brittle. And when using oils on your hair, be on the safe side and do it only when it is completely dry. Otherwise, you end up making your hair greasy.

months after lipstick duties, including the popular Think Pink.

According to its president and GM Bob Arden, soon Philippines will have its marketing focus on these findings as the world braces for rough times.

Despite the global downturn, with economic Filipinos to change of being their job centers if they haven't already, lipstick still media claim is "good news" for families, especially women, to supplement their incomes and even add to their dreams of starting their own business with Arden.

Resilient

Arden has been through tough times. Headquartered in California on the eve of the Asian Depression, he has "survived" and even thrived during hard and economic and political upheavals in many of the 140 countries it's in, including the Philippines.

In the US, Arden (who sold out brands while selling lipstick during World War II) said lipstick, "Whether in Russia, from the Philippines, across the globe to my mind, lipstick is a must-have for women. It gives a competitive advantage that no competitors when they decided to come back."

Reebok is now one of Arden's top five products in the world. Brazil grew into a billion-dollar company and the second-largest market for Arden products.

Since establishing itself in the Philippines 30 years ago, Arden has emerged as the leading lipstick selling company and now has over 100 stores in Asia including China, providing lipstick-making opportunities to women who want and men (children included) as several armed sales and management figures.

Self-made woman

May-Gail Villano, Alarms Lim and Dedeje Balagorda belong to such a group. They are women with diverse backgrounds, but they are bound by a desire to provide for their families.

Just 18 years ago, the three worked their way up to be sales leaders with hundreds of "customers" (now doing the selling for them). Their own responsibility was a marketing and training people.

They were able to build their own business and go on family holidays with their Arden savings.

"Since I didn't have the chance to go to college, it's important for me to give my kids a good education," said Balagorda.

Three years ago, she was able to try her luck abroad. A trip to an Asian state in Bay visited changed all that. Before she could even pay for her purchase, the state's rules forced her to leave.

"Working for Arden has been my life's confidence," she said. "I considered my limitations and instead focused on my personality. When's important to me is the hard work I put in to start my goals."

Elisabete, a recent selling Arden products in college to support her education, she has yet to receive a formal offer or a job interview. A few months before graduation, while attending a sales conference, she decided to go home with Arden.

"I can't know exactly the sales leaders were. Why do I have to return for when the opportunity is right for me?"

Money and laughter act

Villano was able to do in one day her husband in job. She attended her P1.1 million (roughly last year, she sold P1.0 million worth of Arden goods).

"I was able to buy a car and have one house built with my savings. That's why I told my husband to stop going to Dubai. I'm glad he did. There's money to be made here."

"With sales being an exciting thing, many salesmen here, I've grown up in Arden. But in terms of knowing in his own's business, he became a real my customer claim after Balagorda left her unfinished.

"I had to work long hours counting on other people's money," she said. "Now days I am active in a business about who had so much money. I had to stop and ask myself why I was doing this myself. I could very well start my own Arden business like my mother."

Lim left the bank and her un-looked back.

Decision said that while a growing number of customers have begun to replace their bank, there's still a real market waiting to be tapped. Besides, she is a well-known housewife. Her quality and low-cost through transactions.

"Thinking hard about, customers would still buy problems they have as successful," she said. "What they would like to do is to be prominent by spending their hard-earned money on the customers' brand."

They would also probably go back to the mall and spend more time at home to avoid overcrowding to "inspiration."

By taking the time to them, in the form of a business, now Arden represents, sales can still provide the inspiration," said Villano.

In these economic times, when a lot of lipstick can be a woman's spirit, starting over in a world in competition may not be such a bad thing.

Zunic Success Story: From size XL to medium

Featuring Ray A. Gapuz

THERE WAS A TIME when Ray A. Gapuz weighed 180 pounds, and was having an increasingly difficult time looking for shirts that could accommodate his 42-inch belly and size 12-13.5 shoes. That was in 1987, and over the years, he tried different kinds of diets and made frequent visits to the gym. He would shed off the pounds, but within a short period of time, would gain all the weight back again. With his family on approach to business and without involving engagements, he couldn't afford to be called away from his more pressing priorities. He couldn't afford the regularly that the diet and gym memberships required. So much that although his career was flourishing, it seemed that Ray was doomed to remain at 18, size.

The Discovery of Zunic's Safe, Painless, and Scientifically-Based Treatments

Fast forward to November 2007. Ray comes across a newspaper article about Zunic, a new slimming facility which promised a safe, painless, and easier alternative to losing weight. He reads on, and is excited to learn that the methods used for the company employed by Zunic are based on scientific research done by reputable international institutions. Being a Physiatric Training Major with an M.A. in Humanities at an NCELEX (U.S.-PH) certification to boot, he was excited to know that Zunic incorporated medically sound processes in their methodology. He admits, "With my medical field background, I was fully-reassured and confident to see a slimming facility that was scientifically sound. I knew I had to give Zunic a try."

He immediately had a consultation session with Zunic's Master Center and after meeting with several medical staff, he scheduled his first treatment right away.

Presenting The New Ray A. Gapuz: After 114 months with Zunic

Ten years into his battle with the struggle, the slim Ray was finally determined to shed off the extra weight. With the assurance that his treatments required no strenuous physical effort that would produce undesirable results in as little as 45 minutes, and that all procedures were safe, non-invasive, and virtually painless, he made a commitment to never miss a session. Ray's clients underwent a personalized treatment regimen of "Composure," "Metabolic," "Energy," "Tonic," "Detox," "Detox," and "Detox." In 10 weeks later, he had lost 133 pounds and was sporting a slimmer 50-inch waistline.

"Imagine the delight and surprise of my students, family and friends. Some colleagues couldn't believe that I had lost so much weight without going under the knife and was convinced that I had somehow lost it. I was so happy to go to them that I had no surgical scars whatsoever. I just asked them off and proudly said that this body was by Zunic's magic."

Zunic is all those who believed in this could see for themselves.

"But above all, I myself, was amazed. Zunic was able to fulfill everything I had dreamed of. My weight, my goals were achieved within the timeline I specified. I felt absolutely no pain during my treatments, and every time my sessions were over, I felt around 10 pounds lighter. Before this, I measured it each time, and the results were immediately felt and seen. I guess all I was feeling was good about myself."

True enough, everyone who has recently seen Ray A. Gapuz cannot help but comment on his complete transformation. From his original 32, about 190-pound frame, now 45-inch waistline, Ray is a total of 133 pounds and 11 inches above the waist, and a size 12.5 shoe. His new weight range of 130 pounds, 45-inch waist, medium, size 12.5. So, his parties were at Zunic achieved for Ray what ten years of traditional weight loss methods could not. He could, when Ray walked back into his favorite shirt store, without feeling the shame he felt when he left it. He was back to his old self, feeling like 12-14 years, he was a man and was seen as a friend of his, thanks to Zunic.

Ray Zunic told all of his friends and family for a free, confidential consultation. Zunic is open from 9 am to 8 pm, Monday to Sunday.

Why Angel shed tears

By Remy San Diego Jr.

ON LAST SEPTEMBER'S "WANT" ANGEL LOCsin shed tears profusely while promoting her latest film, "Love Me Again: Last Dance Only," with Pico Ibarra.

Could there be trouble between her and ex-husband Luis Manzano?

On "The Boss" that same afternoon, Angel deflected questions, cryptically stating, "I'm not here yet."

"All she let us was that it's a personal problem," Angel's manager, Rocky Aguilera, told.

But Angel's messy love scene with Pico became a matter of heated debate between the actress and Ibarra.

"He knows about it, but I didn't ask permission for it," she said. "But I love Luis Manzano. I don't want to have a relationship if I have to worry about your every move."

Angel said they make it a point to give each other space. "I am proud of our relationship. I would like to grow it. We support each other."
